INTRODUCTORY.

The publisher takes some pride in being able to present to the citizens of Bloomington and Normal so full and complete a Directory as he is now enabled to do. It has cost him much time and earnest labor to accomplish this result, and he feels that it will be appreciated by those for whose benefit, as well as his own, the work was undertaken. There are one hundred pages more names than there were in the last issue, showing two things—one, that there has been a most satisfactory growth of this beautiful and flourishing city; the other, that the work has been accomplished in a painstaking and faithful manner, both in the interest of the city and for the benefit of those who have given the work its patronage. There are at least ten thousand names, which would indicate, according to the usual directory computation, thirty thousand population in Bloomington and Normal; but as the canvass has been so thoroughly made, it may fall a little below that, yet it cannot come under twenty-five thousand. This gives a very encouraging result to those who feel that Bloomington is one of the best cities in the State.

He cannot close without expressing to the people with whom he has come in contact, his thanks for the courteous treatment he has received, and for the fair patronage that has been extended, hoping that when he returns, at a future time, he will meet with a renewed confidence and a reasonable increase in that which is the more encouraging to him.
